

Help us Stop Alabama Rot

Alabama Rot is a potentially fatal disease affecting dogs which has been identified across most of the UK over the past four years. The disease doesn't appear to discriminate between age, gender or breed, and the cause is still unknown.

The Alabama Rot Research Fund (ARRF)

is a national charity set-up to raise funds to research the cause of Alabama Rot to identify prevention and possible treatment strategies.

"Losing Pippa was a tragedy for me. This national charity is our best chance to join together as dog owners to stop this awful disease taking away another beloved best friend." (Jess Worthington, owner of Pippa who sadly died in 2015)
